ABOUT

- Elmira is a charm reader, tarot reader, and intuitive guide with an easygoing surfer-girl energy and a practice unlike anyone else in the spiritual space. Living full time in a travel trailer with her husband, she moves between beaches from Orange County to San Diego, following intuition wherever it leads her. She grew up surfing, competed on her high school surf team, and still feels most grounded when she's outside hiking, meditating, or sitting near the water.
- Elmira's practice comes with an unexpected co-star: Tiki, her 13-year-old cockatiel and self-described soulmate bird. Tiki sometimes helps with readings by choosing tarot cards and pulling charms directly from her hand. According to Elmira, nobody else is doing charm readings with a cockatiel — and definitely nobody is doing bird readings.
- Elmira says her abilities became activated after a near-death experience years ago that completely shifted her perspective and heightened her intuition. Since then, she has spent years developing her own style of reading and building a following through live events, social media, and one-on-one sessions.
- Years ago, while selling jewelry at markets and festivals, she began asking people to randomly pull charms and found herself intuitively building stories and messages around them. Over time, she developed an entire symbolic language and eventually wrote The Charm Reader's Handbook based on her process.
- Elmira believes charms hold endless possibilities. A lightning bolt can literally represent lightning. A spider web can represent connection and the worldwide web. Sometimes she finds charms in the street that seem to appear exactly when she needs them, something she sees as spirit leaving breadcrumbs along the way.
