ABOUT

- Vanessa Jefferson is an intuitive tarot reader and K-pop songwriter. Originally from Detroit and later raised in Houston and Denver, Vanessa says family has always been central to her life — especially her relationship with her younger sister, Lizzo.
- Vanessa says she spent years supporting Lizzo's dreams behind the scenes before eventually being encouraged by her sister to fully pursue her own passions in songwriting, tarot, and spiritual work.
- Although Vanessa always considered herself intuitive, she suppressed her abilities for years after a frightening childhood experience involving astral projection and what she believed was a vision connected to her grandfather's death. Raised in a strict Pentecostal environment, she says spirituality was often framed as something dangerous or "evil."
- Everything shifted during a period of emotional upheaval, including divorce and major life changes. After reconnecting with tarot through her younger brother, Vanessa says her gifts came flooding back and she quickly realized she had a strong ability to channel messages through spirit guides, ancestors, and intuition.
- Vanessa describes her readings as a "spiritual game of telephone," explaining that her spirit guides communicate with a client's guides while she translates messages.
- Known for doing cold readings with almost no prior information, Vanessa says she often begins pulling cards before a client even arrives, relying entirely on intuition.
- Outside of tarot, Vanessa unexpectedly built a second career writing songs for K-pop artists after traveling alone to South Korea during the pandemic. She says a chance tarot reading at a vegan restaurant led to her first songwriting opportunity almost overnight.
