ABOUT

- Marlene "Mar" is a Mesoamerican spiritual practitioner from Los Angeles whose work is deeply rooted in ancestral tradition, fire ceremony, and indigenous healing practices. One of ten children born into a massive first-generation Mexican family, Mar draws much of her spiritual philosophy from her ancestors, her heritage, and the powerful women in her bloodline who practiced healing work before her.
- Raised in a strict Catholic household, Mar grew up balancing church traditions with deeply spiritual ancestral practices that were normalized within her family. By the age of thirteen, she was already learning tarot, dream interpretation, and egg cleansings from her grandmother and great-grandmother, eventually stepping into the role of spiritual guide for her entire extended family. Now a proud mother to her 13-year-old son, Mar says everything she does is for him and for future generations of her family.
- Mar's work blends traditional spirituality with energy healing practices. She specializes in egg cleansings, fire ceremonies, aura cleansing, entity removals, past life readings, dream interpretation, oracle readings, and spiritual channeling — all while incorporating herbs, smoke, sacred waters, resins, obsidian, and ancestral rituals.
- One of the most important parts of Mar's spiritual life is traditional Aztec dance, which she describes not as performance, but ceremony. As the designated fire keeper within her danza group, she helps open and protect sacred energetic spaces during rituals honoring ancestors, prayer, healing, and community connection.
- Mar is passionate about teaching people how to practice egg rituals correctly. After seeing people imitate rituals incorrectly on TikTok, she began hosting workshops across California and beyond, teaching spiritual protection, traditional cleansing methods, and even her own unique form of remote egg cleansings for long-distance clients.
